

REMEMBERING LUC BOILEAU

HE ALWAYS HAD A STORY TO TELL

BY LINDA AYERS TURNER KNORR

When reflecting on times spent over many years with Luc Boileau, I always smile. He was always happy and gleaming, and a real gentleman every time I was around him. Luc was famous for his tales about dogs, horses, Knollwood Farms, his many travels, the thrills of Westminster, and best of all, just memories of our friends. These photos are a few of my favorites from our times together. The dog world has lost another great. Always remember Luc Boileau. ■

There were lots of tales to share with these guys... Luc with John Wade and Ken Murray at Fox River Valley

Wonder what Luc and Ruth Cooper could have been talking about over lunch at Mackinac Island?

Jane Forsyth and Luc had everyone laughing with their great stories at the party at my home in Greenville, South Carolina.

Luc and me, reminiscing up at Fox River Valley.

Luc has the attention of these greats of the dog world at the Grand Hotel at Mackinac Island. What stories this group (Andrea Glassford, Dennis Greivas, George Ward and Luc) could tell!
